The Italian Ministry of Economic Development operates in four main fields: industrial policies, energy, communications and internationalisation policies. Its activities aim to support the innovation, development and competitiveness of Italian economy at both national and international levels.

Among the activities of the Ministry of Economic Development, the policies for the internationalisation of enterprises and for the promotion of the Italian products abroad are particularly important. Specifically, these policies are implemented through the following activities: facilitation of trade with third countries (trade facilitation); guidelines and proposals for the EU's trade policy; activation of the EU trade defence mechanisms (anti-dumping and anti-subsidy measures, safeguard clauses); negotiation of multilateral trade agreements and bilateral economic cooperation with third countries; promotion of new Italian investments abroad and policies for attracting new foreign investments in Italy.

The Italian Ministry of Agricultural Food and Forestry Policies, established in 1946, elaborates and coordinates Italian policy lines in the agricultural, forestry, agri-food and fisheries sectors at national, European and international level. The Ministry's organizational structure consists of:

- a Department for the coordination of European and international policies and rural development, which deals with market policies in the agricultural and agri-food sector, and liaises with the European Union in the process of elaboration and implementation of the communitarian legislation;
- a Department for competitive policies on agri-food quality and fisheries, which is responsible for the quality of products and the valorization of the "Made in Italy" brand;
- a Central Inspection Service for quality protection and fraud repression of agri-food products which, together with the State Forestry Corps, the Carabinieri Department for Agricultural and Food Policies and the Sea Fisheries Department of the Port Authority, ensures to the consumers the high quality of products through counter-actions to the phenomena of counterfeiting agribusiness.

From agri-food to fisheries, from organic and geographical indication-products to agri-business quality production, the Ministry of Agricultural Food and Forestry Policies is involved in the protection of the Made in Italy brand worldwide.

Founded in 1910, Confindustria is the main organisation representing Italian manufacturing and services companies. More than 150.000 companies of all sizes - employing a total of 5.434.352 workers - are voluntary members of the organisation. The fundamental value underlying Confindustria's activities is the belief that free enterprise and free economic activity, within the framework of a market economy, are key factors for the growth and development of society as a whole. In its by-laws, Confindustria pledges to contribute to Italy's economic and social growth by cooperating with both Italian and international political institutions and economic, social and cultural organisations. To this end, Confindustria represents the interests of Italian companies to leading political and administrative institutions, including parliament, the government, trade unions and other social partners. Confindustria has assumed an increasingly complex role in seeking solutions to the country's major problems through dialogue with other partners in the production and labour world.

As in the past, new challenges lie ahead on the road to development and economic growth: Confindustria's mission is to meet them in a constant quest for solutions for the production system and the country as a whole.
